JACKSON A SOUTH CAROLINIAN.

New Evidence Showing that "Old Hickory" was Born in this State.

Charleston News and Courier.

To the Editor of The News and Courier: In looking over some old books I came across a copy of the "Memoirs of Andrew Jackson," by S. Putnam Waldo, Esq., compiler of Robbins Journal and author of the "President's Tour," and "published by Silas Andrus, Hartford," and by "Frederick Hinsdale, Berlin"—Roberts & Burr, printers," in the year 1818.

Having noticed from time to time snatches of controversy between The News and Courier and the Charlotte Observer as to the birthplace of "Old Hickory," and thinking the following might be interesting to you and your readers, and equally disquieting to the editor of the Observer, I take pleasure in quoting:

"The birthplaces of statesmen, heroes and poets have often been subjects of historical investigation, and not infrequently of warm dispute. Seven cities of Greece claimed the honor of giving birth to Homer. The birth of illustrious men certainly imparts a consequence to the place of their nativity; and oftentimes the only consequence they possess. An English civilian will visit the birthplace of Alfred—the soldier, that of Marlborough; the poet, those of Shakespeare and Milton. Americans, although comparatively a new people, can scarcely travel in any section of their extensive Republic, that they can point to the place where some of its great benefactors were born. The catalogue would swell the volume. Among the first statesmen in the world, might be mentioned the members of the Old Congress; among heroes, the officers of the 'Army of the Revolution,' among poets, a constellation of geniuses, to whom posterity will award the meed of praise."

"No sooner had Andrew Jackson began to achieve those deeds of valor which furnish a sure presage of future eminence, than Englishmen and Scotchmen claimed him as a native-born subject. They once claimed Gen. Washington. Irishmen omitted to assert their claim to his nativity; but he was of Irish extraction, although born in America. His grandfather was one of the victims of the siege of Carrickfergus, in Ireland, and all ancestors, being among the humbler classes of Irishmen, endured the suffering which that ill-fated and oppressed race have long endured from some of the Irish nobility, born in the bosom of that country; and from English noblemen sent there to govern them."

"His father, Andrew Jackson, emigrated to America with his wife and two sons in the year 1765. Desirous that his rising family should escape from the oppression of the English Government in Europe, he came to this country as an asylum from the rod of abused power. He landed at Charleston, in the State of South Carolina, and soon after established himself at a settlement formerly called Waxsaw, now the district of Marion."

"His youngest son, and the subject of these memoirs, was born at that place upon the 15th of March 1767."

St. Matthew's, October 18, 1909.

North Carolina Congressman Makes

Serious Charge against Postmistress.

Asheville, N. C. special in yesterday's Charlotte Observer: The fact that Mrs. Fannie J. Reed, a widow, was removed as postmistress at Biltmore as a result of an affidavit filed with the department at Washington, to the effect that Mrs. Reed had attempted to bribe Congressman Grant, has created great interest hereabouts, and today politically the talk has to do with the matter. The knowledge that Mrs. Reed's removal was due to this affidavit was obtained by a member of the North Carolina congressional delegation, who visited the department. This Congressman said that he was not at liberty to say who had suggested the affidavit, but that such an affidavit was on file; that this was the cause of Mrs. Reed's removal.

The publication of this fact and the further fact that Mrs. Reed was given no opportunity to refute the charge created much talk, and today Congressman Grant comes to the bat and says that he made the affidavit; that Mrs. Reed did attempt to bribe him; that very shortly he will make a full statement relative to the matter.

Mrs. Reed says that she did not.

Oil Mill in Camden Damaged by Fire.

Camden News: About 2:30 o'clock on last Thursday morning the ware room of the Southern Cotton Oil Co.'s, plant here was discovered to be on fire, and despite all the efforts of the fire department and the mill force the entire room was destroyed and the contents burned or so seriously damaged as to be of but little value.

The loss amounted to about $25,000, which was fully covered by insurance.

Man Arrested in New York Supposed to be Wanted in Chester on Murder Charge.

New York, Oct. 20.—On the strength of his resemblance to a description of D. C. Colvin, charged with the murder of Collins Judge, in Landsford, S. C., a young man who gave the name of Chalmers Barber, was arrested here to-day. He will be held for the action of the South Carolina authorities.

Cure Your Kidneys.

No Need to Take any Further Risks

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work. If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney disease, cure your self now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Can Lancaster residents demand more convincing proof than the following:

J. Henry Gladden, 101 Forest Ave., Chester, S. C., says: "Several years ago I was suffering from a severe pain in the small of my back which kept me in misery. In the morning upon first arising, I was often so lame and sore that I could hardly get up. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I began using them and it required but three boxes to effect a complete cure. I gave a statement recommending this remedy on April 30, 1908 and am pleased to say that I have had little or no trouble with my kidneys since. I know Doan's Kidney Pills are a very reliable remedy and gladly recommend them."

GREGORY-HOUGH NUPTIALS.

Marriage of Mr. Harry Lee Gregory and Miss Willie Blanche Hough in Camden Tuesday.

Camden News: In accordance with the announcement previously made in the News, Mr. Harry Lee Gregory, of Kershaw, and Miss Willie Blanche Hough, daughter of Senator and Mrs. W. R. Hough, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents on north Broad street, Rev. B. G. Murphy officiating, at 12 o'clock yesterday.

The attendants were Mr. S. O. Gregory, brother of the groom, and Miss Tressa Hough, sister of the bride.

The ribbon girls were Misses Mary Emma Hough and Margaret Trantham; and the lace girl, little Miss Annie Cornelia Atkinson.

The wedding march was played by Miss Helen Geisenheimer. The dress of the bride was of cream serge, violet velvet, with jet buttons.

The decoration colors were green and white, with chrysanthemums. The curtains were drawn and the room was lighted with candles and candelabra.

After the ceremony a reception was tendered the wedding guests.

The bride and groom were the recipients of very many handsome presents of silverware and other expensive materials.

The happy young couple then took the Southern's northbound train at 1:40 p. m. for Washington, bearing with them the congratulations and best wishes of a host of friends.

Among the many who were present at the marriage were the following from Kershaw: S. O. Gregory, Dr. L. T. Gregory, Col. and Mrs. L. C. Hough, Mrs. W. H. Sowell, Mrs. G. T. Horton, Misses Nellie Horton and Nellie Ingram, and Mr. S. F. Hough.

Sumter Magistrate and Deputy Kill Desperate Negro.

Columbia special in Charlotte Observer, Oct. 21: At Sumter today while Magistrate Douglass Jenkins and Deputy Charles Jenkins were attempting to arrest a desperate negro named George Mitchell, the latter fired upon and seriously wounded Magistrate Jenkins and the negro's stray shot caught a negro child in the neck crippling it for life. The officers returning the fire killed Mitchell instantly. The coroner's jury exonerated them. There was intense excitement for a time, the Jenkinses being prominently connected.

Leg Crushed in Mill Elevator.

King's Mountain special in Charlotte Observer, Oct. 21: As a result of the wire rope, which holds the elevator, slipping from the drum, the elevator at the Dilling cotton mill fell yesterday afternoon crushing the right limb of John Morrow, a middle-aged man who was on the elevator at the time. Drs. Hunter and Jonas ministered to the injured man and after an examination of the injury it was found necessary to amputate the man's leg and he was taken to the city hospital this morning for that purpose.

Full cures are quickly cured by Foley's Honey and Tar, the great throat and lung remedy. The genuine contains no harmful drugs. J. F. Mackey Co.; Lancaster Pharmacy.

DR. J. H. CARLISLE DEAD.

Aged President Emeritus of Wofford College and One of the Best Known Educators in the South Succumbs to Long Illness.

Spartanburg special in yesterday's Charlotte Observer: Dr. James H. Carlisle, aged 84 years, president emeritus of Wofford College and one of the most prominent educators in the South died at his home here this morning at 7:30 o'clock. The funeral will be held Friday at 4 p. m., in the college chapel and will be attended by hundreds of prominent citizens from all sections of the State. All schools and colleges in the city have closed and during hours of funeral tomorrow all places of business will be closed.

The last time that Dr. Carlisle appeared in public was during the summer school for teachers at Wofford College, when it was the pleasure of the teachers to hear an interesting address on school life of long ago, and on Washington's visit to South Carolina after he had been elected President of the United States. Prior to this time he had not made an address in public for many months.

Dr. Carlisle was president of Wofford College from 1875 to 1902, when he resigned and became president emeritus. Following his resignation Dr. H. N. Snyder was elected.

James Henry Carlisle was born in Winnsboro, Fairfield county, South Carolina, May 4, 1825. His father, Dr. William Carlisle, was a native of Ireland and came to this country in 1818, settling at Winnsboro, where he was a practicing physician for many years.

Georgetown's Mysterious Homicide Case Being Tried.

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 21.—Dr. C. G. Bigham of Florence county and W. B. Avant of Georgetown county were placed on trial at Georgetown, S. C., to-day, charged with killing the young wife of Dr. Bigham at Murrell's Inlet, a summer resort on the coast not far from Georgetown, an hour after sundown on September 4. At the time of the tragedy, Avant admitted that he had fired the fatal shot. Mrs. Bigham was walking toward the beach dressed in her bathing suit, with a light overcoat thrown about her, when Avant, a close friend of her husband, fired. She lived only a minute or two after being wounded.

The defendants claim that they were sitting together on the steps of a cottage when a figure came from the rear of the cottage and disappeared in the gathering darkness. Gun in hand they followed it, calling out to know who it was and what it wanted. Receiving no response, Dr. Bigham told Avant to fire, which he did. They rushed to the prostrate figure and discovered that it was Dr. Bigham's wife. She was 23 years of age and is said to have been a very handsome woman.

Retired Capitalist's Mission. Colonel Nicholas Bell, a retired capitalist and politician of St. Louis, passed through Montgomery, Mo., recently in a motorcar on the way to Seattle, Wash. He is going over the same route he traveled with an ox team forty-three years ago. He was then sixteen years old, the same age as his son Christian, who is driving the motor. Colonel Bell is telling farmers along the way of two things that will make them rich and happy—rock roads and motorcars.

Senator Smith's Speech in Charlotte. Strong Plea for Mill Operatives.

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 20.—With an address from United States Senator E. D. Smith of South Carolina on "The Industrial Development in the South and the Cotton Mill as an Economic Problem," the home mission conference rounded out a day and night calculated to shed light on the question of the relation of the church to the industrial situation. Senator Smith's address was the first of the day's session. He made an earnest plea for the cotton mill operatives, whom he characterized as men and women as ripe and as fit for God's kingdom as the wealthier classes among which the church is working. The field, he declared, is ready for the harvesters. The church should go to them, not with the patronizing hand of charity, but with the broad spirit of statesmanship, which recognizes their possibilities and affords opportunity for legitimate expression.

How an Automoblist Made His Stubborn Machine Move.

They say that automobiles occasionally "take the studs," just like the footmule that has caused many a man to lose great hunks of his reputation. A case in point occurred here a few evenings ago, when Mr. Requarth's machine, without rhyme or reason, positively refused to budge after he had made all the arrangements to go to a party.

But the most remarkable instance thus far reported comes from the Sapp Cross Roads section. One day this week our good friend Dr. W. H. Sapp in that community essayed to respond to an urgent call, mounting his handsome red devil for the purpose. Before proceeding far however, the machine deliberately stopped on a level stretch of road. Coaxing and coercion were both used with futile effect. The thing just wouldn't go. It had evidently made up its gasoline mind to stick, and there it stuck. But the genial doctor, ever resourceful, finally found a way to resume navigation, and here is what a neighbor witnessed as he passed the strange procession in the road: A negro leading a black horse hitched to a buggy, the latter attached by rope to the red devil's nose, the doctor on the benzine beast industriously engaged in turning first one way and then the other an iron wheel in his lap, his mouth undergoing contortions in unison with the revolving wheel, and behind the whole "push" three stalwart negroes shoving the outfit along. That was "movin' some," wasn't it?

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Several Interesting Jury Cases Heard During the Week.

The case of Mrs. Roma Stogner against the town of Lancaster, suit for damages for personal injury sustained by being thrown from a buggy on the streets, the accident being due to condition of the latter, which was being tried in court when The News went to press Tuesday evening, resulted in a verdict Tuesday night in favor of the plaintiff for $212.50.

The court was engaged Wednesday in the trial of an interesting case against the Southern Power company, an action for damages instituted by Mrs. Mary A. Montgomery. The plaintiff granted the defendant company a right of way over her lands for its power line from the Catawba river plant to Monroe, N. C., but she claimed that instead of confining itself to the usual width, 80 feet, the company cut a way of 210 feet wide through her timbered lands, hence the suit for damages, $2,000 being claimed. The jury returned a verdict Wednesday evening for $500. The sum of $150 was also allowed the plaintiff in another suit for cord wood destroyed. The plaintiff was represented by Mr. J. Harry Foster, and the defendant by Judge Frank Osborne, of Charlotte, and Mr. John T. Green, of Lancaster. Defendant's counsel made a motion for a new trial, which has not yet been decided.

The case of Mrs. M. A. Hilton against Martin Cauthen, suit for rent of house, was tried Thursday, resulting in a verdict for the plaintiff for $52. The question involved was whether the building was rented by the month or by the year. The plaintiff was represented by Mr. Foster, and the defendant by Mr. Wylie. Notice of motion for new trial was given.

The jurors were dismissed Thursday afternoon and the court was engaged yesterday in hearing equity causes. As many as nine jury cases have been set for trial next week.

She Was Pleasantly Surprised

Miss H. E. Bell, Waukegan, Wis., writes: "Before I commenced to take Foley's Kidney Pills I had severe pains in my back, could not sleep and was greatly troubled with headaches. The first few doses of Foley's Kidney Pills gave me relief, and two bottles cured me. The quick results surprised me, and I can honestly recommend them." J. F. Mackey Co.; Lancaster Pharmacy.

Youth Charged with Sending "Black Hand" Letter Gives Bond.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 20.—Daniel W. Johnson, the 16-year old boy who is charged with having attempted to secure $30,000 from Asa G. Candler by means of a "black hand" letter, voluntarily appeared before the United States court today and made bond for his appearance in the sum of $1,000. Johnson forfeited his bond several days ago when he failed to appear when his case was called, but when he explained that he had forgotten the date, he was allowed to come into court and renew bond without being arrested.

BOTH BOYS SAVED

Louis Boon, a leading merchant of Norway, writes: "Three bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar absolutely cured my boy of a severe cough, and a neighboring boy, who was so ill with a cold that he did not give him up, was cured by taking Foley's Honey and Tar. Nothing else is as safe and certain in results. J. F. Mackey Co.; Lancaster Pharmacy."
